Who I am

I am 22 and grew up surrounded by tools: my father is self-employed and runs a construction company, and with him I learned from a young age to handle all kinds of tools and to solve very different tasks on site. That is where my character comes from: I am entrepreneurial, ambitious and responsible, and I adapt quickly to any trade.

On construction sites and in hospitality I have learned the same thing: things go well when there is order. That is why I like to create systems so that the work always turns out equally well and is easier for the whole team.

“There is no limit to improvement: there is always something that can be done better.”

Why I want to work in Switzerland

I want to take this step because I believe Switzerland offers a higher quality of life, and because I am convinced I can contribute a lot to the company that trusts me: my hands and my experience as an installer, my ability to learn quickly and find solutions, and my experience leading teams and organising work. I am looking for a place where I can grow and give my best.
